IS YOUR MONEY BLUEPRINT ACTUALLY DRIVING YOU TO SPEND MORE?

2009 has started out to be a fantastic year. If we could only keep the noise of the press minimal and let our great citizens rally like we did in what I will call "the good ole days" when we all pulled together and helped each other with our daily struggles. I bet you we could, as a nation, bring our economy back to a thriving and growing place.

Perhaps there is a reason that our economy is having this kind of turmoil currently. Have we all overspent our paychecks in the hopes that we would find happiness and peace within the items that we just "had to have" and come to find out that once we got the store bought treasures home we didn't really need or want the item at all? What we wanted was the feeling that was created when we rang up the purchase and walked proudly out of the store location.

What if you could create that same feeling every day within yourself without having to spend that money simply by taking yourself to a place of love and gratitude for everything you already have?

Let's go on a journey together, a journey about money and how it drives you or makes you crazy in your daily life. If you are in a love relationship with someone, I urge both of you to attend the class so that you both walk out of the five week course with tools in your emotional tool belt to work hand in hand in getting your financial life back in alignment. My guess is you are not where you want to be financially or you would not be reading this newsletter right now.

WHAT IMAGE DO YOU HAVE OF YOUR FINANCIAL SELF? IS IT SOMETHING YOU'D LIKE TO CHANGE?

I recently took a class on Image centered around the names and identities we put on ourselves and others around us. It was very interesting and it turned out to be a very deep topic which extends into our core beings and our belief systems. I know that as a kid growing up in the rural Midwest, I definitely had "images" of myself and the competition that existed with myself and my friends, even in the rural vs. city kids that went to the same school. Were you in a classified group of kids when you went to school?

Were you in the "right crowd" or the "wrong crowd"? Did you feel labeled? Are you constantly feeling judged by your neighbors and coworkers on what you have vs. what they own? Who is your insider competition?
